Lambrusco

Lambrusco is a family of very old grape varieties native to Italy. Most wines are a blend of several distinct varieties, each with a unique taste profile. Today, the best Lambrusco are dry (secco) and barely sweet (semisecco), and are almost always made in a semi-sparkling, frizzante style.

Piedmont

Piedmont wine region stretches between the Alps from the north and the Apennines from the south. These two mountain ranges have a significant role in the viticulture of the region. They are responsible for the favorable climate and terroir, which produces significantly high-quality Italian wines. Like Tuscany, Piedmont (Piemonte) is considered a top wine region in Italy.

Barbaresco

The mostly fertile limestone-based soils in Barbaresco, along with its slightly milder climate results in wines with noticeably less tannins than Barolo. This does not mean is not tannic, is just more elegant and delicate. In terms of flavors, Barbaresco delivers amazing red fruit (strawberry, raspberry, cherry) along with notes of roses and anise and it's not quite as “tarry.” Traditional pairings for Barbaresco are rich meat-focused dishes like braised short ribs, beef roasts, lamb or veal chops.

Super Tuscons

“Super Tuscan” is a term used to describe red wines from Tuscany that may include the use of non-indigenous grapes, particularly Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah. The creation of super Tuscan wines was a result of the frustration winemakers had towards a slow bureaucracy in changing the wine law of Italy during the 1970.

Tenuta San Guido

Tenuta San Guido is named after the Saint Guido della Gherardesca who lived during the XI century. It is located on the Tyrrhenian coast, between Leghorn and Grosseto. The 18th October the Wedding between Mario Incisa della Rocchetta and Clarice della Gherardesca started it all. Mario Incisa's love of good wine made him plant Cabernet vines in 1942 for what was to become Sassicaia.

Masseto emerged as a separate wine precisely because it didn't fit into the Ornellaia concept. Thirty years after its first vintage, this 100% Merlot continues to stand apart from its Bolgheri neighbours an exceptional single vineyards expression.
